"The Relation of Church Members to the Sunday School," is the question that I ask your kind attention to, my dear Christian brothers and sisters. No one can regret more than myself that a brighter mind, a pen more ready than mine, were not selected to air this subject and turn the searchlight of study, learning and experience on every part of it. Being in Richmond city years ago, my attention was attracted to an enormous pile of building material in a certain part of the city. When I mentioned it to a friend who lived there he said, "That is to be our handsome new city hall; I'll go there with you. They are busy laying the foundation now." Arriving there the courteous and gentlemanly superintendent of the work kindly showed me how deep they had gone down into mother earth and built a solid and secure wall of rock and cement for the building to rest on, and remarked that of all the work about the building that was the most important, as its resisting the wear and storms of time depended on a solid and secure foundation, and that no time or money would be spared to make it so. Church members are the foundation of our Sunday Schools; if they are resting on Christ the Solid Rock and making a determined and daily effort to resist the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil and to be like Christ, our Sunday Schools are safe and secure. But if our Church members are unreliable and indifferent, not seeming to have any image of a loving Savior in their hearts to comfort, sustain and guide them among the temptations of this world, but are drifting with and after the sinful pleasures of the world, our Sunday Schools are not on a solid foundation. It was my pleasure some years since, with an experienced guide, to go over and examine every part of the palatial ocean steamer, City of Paris, at that time plying between New York and Liverpool. When we came to the huge and powerful engines the guide remarked that they were more important and useful than any other part of the handsome steamship, as they furnished the motive power, and unless they were in good order and working she could not move. Church members are the motive power of our Sunday Schools-they cannot move without them, and you can tell the moment you enter a school if they are interested in it, and working earnestly for its success, or if they are inand seedy looks that I am a farmer; and as I drive over the country I very naturally take a passing nterest in my brother farmers' crops, and notice whether they are good or indifferent. But when I pass my own crop I slow down and view it from every visible part of the field, and am all interest-because that is my crop. I know when the sod was

And I am in a measure personally responsible for its success or failure. And that is my Essay by Jno. L. Beale, of Westmoreland County, Va., Read Before the Ministers' and Laymen's Institute, Held with Coan Baptist Church, idea of the relation of a Church member to the Sunday School at his or her Church. It is your Sunday School, you are a part of it, and in a measure personally responsible for its success or failure whether you admit it or not. You should take the same interest in it that you do in your business-know its every officer and scholar, plan, work, "spend and be spent" and pray earnestly All over this beautiful land of ours faithful and loving parents have recently been discussing our different schools and colleges, not knowing which one to send their sweet girl of promise, or bright boy of hope to. And the attainments, the experience, the daily life and character of the presidents. professors and teachers in these schools and colleges have been freely discussed and their strong and weak points viewed from every reasonable standpoint. The hope of any school or college to collect a large number of bright boys and girls in its recitation rooms each year depends as much on the character and daily life of its officers as on any other thing in connection with it. As they give the college or school its tone, character and example, so Church members bear the same relation to our Sunday Schols that presidents, professors and teachers do to our schools and colleges and give them their character, tone and example. Do you, my dear Christian brothers and sisters, realize this as you go to your class each Sunday? What is your idea of a Sunday School? Is it a band of men and women who meet at God's house each Sunday to go hurriedly over a certain part of God's Holy Word, and then discuss the affairs of the home, the neighborhood, the outside world, making special mention of the recent arrival of friends from a distance, of new dresses and suits that fit the wearers as if they were moulded in them, of new bonnets and hats that are very stylish, becoming and beautiful? Or is it a band of Christ's men and Christ's women who daily, earnestly and prayerfully study a portion of God's Holy Word, and meet each Sunday at His house to make it plain to the little boys and girls, to tell them true and touching stories of God's great love for them and do all in their power to train them for and bring them to Christ? The best way to explain God's Word to others is to study it carefully and prayerfully and know it yourself. The best way to influence others to be good is to be good yourself. The best way to persuade others to give their hearts and lives to Christ is to show them by your words and your acts always and everywhere that He has yours. At no time in the history of our country has the value and importance of educating the young been realized as it is today. As an evidence of this our standard schools and colleges are being enlarged and improved along every line; new schools are starting up where they are needed; parents whose educational advantages were very limited, seeing the great advantage of an education, begin to plan, deny themselves and save by the time TIANS their child is five years old, that it may be educated; and every autumn finds our schools and colleges filled with bright young men and women thirsting for knowledge. Surely no one can doubt that this is as it should be, or hesitate to thank God and rejoice. But it should cause us, as Church members, to realize our responsibility as to our Sunday Schools-as to their great value and importance for God and good, as to our duty to see that these children are drilled and trained in our Sunday Schools and made familiar with God's Holy Word and His great love for them, before they go out from the influence of a Christian home and are too weak of themselves to resist successfully the temptations of a sinful world. There isn't a minister or layman in this church who will hesitate one moment to admit that the happiest, most lovable, influential and useful Church members in their Churches are men and women who were trained in their early lives in the Sunday Schools, and all of us know that our Churches are sadly in need of more consecrated men and women. Knowing this, and knowing that the growth or decline, success or failure of our Sunday Schools depends entirely on us as Church members, and knowing that the greatest and best additions to our Churches come from our Sunday Schools, and that the future hope of our Churches depends entirely on our Sunday Schools, we should humbly and reverently with one voice cry out-

Let us now think of the new life that our Churches and Sunday Schools would spring into that no matter how little interest they had taken in, or how much they had neglected the Sunday School in the past, with God's help in the future every Sunday would find them at their Sunday School, earnestly working and praying and willing to do all in their power for its success. No better thing than the Sunday Sunday to develop and cause to flourish and increase all that is best in the character of a Church member, and to make them useful and helpful along every line of Church work, and to train boys and girls to be Christ's men and women has yet been discovered. And no done all he could for the Sunday School in this life who wasn't a bright, happy and useful Christian, or who failed
